

Stress Reduction for Children, Youth, Parents, and Educators

Stress happens when the demands on us exceed our ability to cope. Use practical techniques to reduce your stress, in the moment and over the long term.

Understand what Stresses Youth Out

- Pain, injury, illness
- Big changes
- Divorce
- Poverty or homelessness
- Neighborhood
- Relationship challenges
- Social pressure, esp. body image
- Academic challenges
- Too many activities

Understand what Stress Looks like in Youth

- Headaches
- Stomachaches
- Bed wetting
- Aggression
- Sudden change in appetite or weight
- Nightmares or trouble spelling
- Excessive crying

Start by Addressing Your Stress

Understand that you are your students's Calm Center.

- When are you stressed?
- How do you respond to stress?
- What can you change to reduce your stress?

Address Situational and Environmental Stress

- Ask yourself and your student(s) if the stressor is 1) necessary, 2) improving your lives, and 3) able to be done in a different way.
- Create an environment that is 1) welcoming, 2) supportive, 3) visually calming, and 4) setting the young person up for success

Use Mindfulness to Reduce Stress, Anxiety, and Depression

- Try breath work to come back to the present during a crisis.
- Use yoga to strengthen the mind-body-spirit connection.
- Meditate regularly to lower stress, anxiety, and depression.
- Try affirmations to overcome fears and worries.

